PROPOSED USE: Component part of a three hour fire resistive floor and/or roof construction.

DESCRIPTION: The tile is an incombustible mineral acoustical tile, $\frac{3}{4}$ inches thick and is 12 inches by 12 inches with ventilating slots $1\frac{5}{8}$ " long by $\frac{3}{16}$ " wide cut along each edge 6" on centers.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A floor construction using the tile as a suspended ceiling was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0 Administrative Building Code.

Steel floor units, fabricated of a fluted sheet of 18 gauge steel top section, spot welded to a fluted section of 16 gauge steel forming a section $3\frac{1}{8}$ " deep by $24\frac{1}{4}$ " wide, are first installed. Hanger clips are placed over the male legs of the floor unit joints on 30" centers on 4'0" intervals. Concrete is then poured to a depth of $2\frac{1}{2}$ " over the top plane of the steel floor units.

Wire hangers of number 8 gauge galvanized steel wire are inserted through the hanger clips and secured by wrapping them back around themselves.

The 1½" channels are then installed running at right angles to the floor units and are secured to the hanger wires 4'0" on center by means of saddle ties.

The light fixture yokes, used to support the light fixture 27½" wide by 5½" high, are then installed 3'0" apart and attached with clamps to the 1½" channels.

As the ceiling was continuous over and around the light fixtures, a box of the same tile was fabricated and installed.

The main runners are then installed by clipping them to the 1½" channels by means of zee runner clips.

The acoustical tile, 12"x12"x¾", is then installed by inserting the flange of the runners into the kerf of the tile.

The construction is in accordance with Ill. 1, 2, 3, and 4, R4355-7 which are on file with and part of the record.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 1233-65-SA—International Heater Company, Utica, New York, filed for approval of the appliance known as International of Utica Heat Pumps, Models PAC-2C-1A, PAC-3B-1A, PAC-4-1A, PAC-5-1A, PS-3D-1D, PS-4D-1D, PS-5D-1D, PUC-3D, PUC-4D, and PUC-5D, under the provisions of Article 18, Chapter 19, Administrative Code.

PROPOSED USE: To supply cooled air in the summer and heated air in winter to residential and commercial occupancies.

DESCRIPTION: The International of Utica Heat Pumps have cooling capacities of 2, 3, 4, and 5 tons and are made in two basic types. Single package self-contained units identified as the PAC models which are installed flush mounted through a wall or entirely outdoors so that outside air is available for the condenser coil and remote type systems that have outdoor compressor-condenser units identified as the PS models and indoor air handling units identified as the PUC models. The PS and PUC units are connected by means of copper refrigerant tubing.

The equipment is housed in insulated galvanized steel cabinets made with suitable openings for air passage. An epoxy prime coat and a baked enamel finish are applied for weather resistance.

The heat pumps are charged with R-22 refrigerant and for cooling operate as any standard air conditioning system employing a sealed compressor, an air cooled condenser, capillary tube refrigerant controls and an evaporator coil with blower fan.

An automatic changeover thermostat is provided to change the cycle from cooling to heating depending on the temperature for which the thermostat is preset.

When the thermostat calls for heating an electrically operated pilot valve changes the position of a reversing valve which is installed in the refrigerant vapor line. This causes the refrigerant to be pumped through the system by the compressor in the opposite direction.

A check valve at the outdoor coil (condenser) allows a free flow of refrigerant from the coil during cooling cycles, but requires the refrigerant to flow through a capillary tube into the outdoor coil during heating cycles. The outdoor coil then acts as an evaporator. The cold vapor drawn from the outdoor coil by the compressor is compressed to a pressure that heats it to over 100°F, and it is then pumped into the indoor coil which now acts as a condenser and thus heats the air flowing through it.

Because the outdoor coil tends to collect frost when the weather is 40°F or lower, provision is made to defrost the coil every 90 minutes by means of an electric timer which causes an automatic change-over to a cooling cycle to pump hot refrigerant from the indoor coil to quickly flush it through the outdoor coil. A defrost valve installed near the indoor coil opens automatically to permit a fast refrigerant flow so that the defrosting interval is usually one to two minutes. Defrosting cycles are limited to outdoor coil temperatures of 32°F or less by a pressure of 50 psi when surface temperature is 32°F. The pressure switch and timer are connected in series and when both close the reversing valve is actuated to operate the system in a defrosting cycle.

For severe weather conditions, the heat output of these units may be supplemented by the installation of auxiliary electric heaters in the duct work.

The ratings of the different models are as follows:

Model	Cooling Capacity @ 95° Outdoors	Heating Capacity @ 45° Outdoors
PAC-2C-1A	23,000 BTU	23,000 BTU
PAC-3B-1A	34,000 BTU	34,000 BTU
PAC-4-1A	46,000 BTU	46,000 BTU
PAC-5-1A	57,000 BTU	57,000 BTU
PS-3D-1D	35,000 BTU	34,000 BTU
PS-4D-1D	46,000 BTU	46,000 BTU
PS-5D-1D	57,000 BTU	57,000 BTU

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

These heat pumps were tested and approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories, file SA 3418.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance International of Utica Heat Pumps, Models PAC-2C-1A, PAC-3B-1A, PAC-4-1A, PAC-5-1A, PS-3D-1D, PS-4D-1D, PS-5D-1D, PUC-3D, PUC-4D, and PUC-5D, for use in New York City in accordance with this report and the provisions of Article 18, Chapter 19, Administrative Code, provided that each heat pump unit shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 1233-65-SA".

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 49-66-SA—Per Corporation, Orange, New Jersey, filed for approval of the appliance known as Auto Flex

Combo, AF Series, for use with dry cleaning systems under the provisions of the Board's Rules Covering Dry Cleaning Establishments, Coin Operated and Non-Coin Operated.

PROPOSED USE: A filter and cooker-still used in dry cleaning systems employing perchlorethylene solvent.

DESCRIPTION: The Auto Flex Combo consists of a tubular type filter and a steam heated muck-cooker still used as components in a dry cleaning system. The still is designed in accordance with the ASME code for a steam working pressure of 100 psi. The interior of the still is vented to atmosphere.

In operation, the filter tubes are precoated with a prescribed amount of diatomaceous earth and carbon for solvent clarification during the cleaning cycle.

After each cleaning cycle, the filter powder coating is "bumped" off the filter tubes to the bottom of the filter. The tubes are then precoated with the same powder so that a new surface of powder is exposed to solvent flow during the next cleaning cycle.

At the completion of a day's operation or after 10 to 15 loads, the filter powder along with some solvent is transferred through piping to the cooker-still where the solvent is distilled off.

Steam, from a remote boiler, is supplied to a steam jacket around the still chamber at a maximum pressure of 80 psi controlled by a reducing valve. A safety valve set at 100 psi is also installed in the steam line if boiler safety valve setting exceeds 100 psi.

When the distillation of solvent nears completion, live steam is slowly introduced into the still chamber through a manually operated needle valve control to aid in removing the remaining solvent.

Solvent and steam vapors are condensed on a water cooled coil installed in the still near the top, collect on a trough beneath the coil and drain off to a water separator. The solvent is returned to the system and the water is discarded to waste.

When the still has cooled sufficiently, the filter powder is removed and discarded.

The Auto Flex Combo AF Series are made in a number of sizes identified by suffix numerals in their model designation. Earlier designations indicated 10 sizes by filter flow rating in gallons per hour from 1500 to 10,000, such as AF 1500 and AF 10,000. Present designations include an additional suffix to indicate the still diameter used with the filter. For example, the smallest size AF 15-16 to indicate a 1500 gallon per hour filter rating and a 16 inch diameter still; the largest size AF 100-42 indicating a 10,000 gallon per hour filter rating and a 42 inch diameter still. There are 23 intermediate combinations.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Auto Flex combo, AF Series for use in New York City in accordance with this report and the recommendations of the manufacturer. Each Auto Flex Combo filter and still bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 49-66-SA".

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 565-66-SM—The Ceco Corp., Chicago, Illinois filed for approval of the material known as Ceco Open Web Steel Joists—J Series under the provisions of C26-519.0 Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Joists used in all classes of construction.

DESCRIPTION: The joists are manufactured in depths ranging from 8 to 24 inches. The top chord is formed of angles and the bottom chord and web members are round bars. The top chord angles range from 1" x 1" x 0.125" to 1¾" x 1¾" x 0.192". The round bars for the bottom chord range from 0.468" to 0.832" and the web members range from 0.468" to 0.832" except for center members which range from 0.468" to 0.702". The joists are designed in accordance with the Standard Specification and Load Table Open Web Steel Joist, Steel Joists Institute.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Tests were conducted at the applicant's plant Hillside, New Jersey under the supervision of Mr. M. Alpein P. E. to show compliance with the requirements of C26-519.0 Administrative Building Code.

The load tables submitted by the applicant are based on total load (live and dead) and it was necessary to determine what percentage of the load would cause a deflection of 1/360 of the span. The figured loading is based on design moment of the total load; therefore, the test was conducted to determine what percentage of the load would cause a deflection of 1/360 of the span and allow that percentage of the total load to be assumed as the live load. The tests showed that the load required to cause a deflection of 1/360 of the span was in excess of 68½%.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Ceco Open Web Steel Joists—Series J for use in New York City, when installed in accordance with the requirements of C26-519.0. The Committee further recommends approval of the load tables of the J Series Joists as submitted in the catalogue described as Steel Joists Load Tables with Properties Dimensions The Ceco Corp.—1966, except that the loads shown in that catalogue being based on total load (live and dead) shall be figured on the basis of 68% of the total load as the maximum live load, and 32% of that total load as the minimum dead load. It is further recommended that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 565-66-SM", and that all

COURT DECISION

Matter of Chatsworth 72nd St. Corp. vs. Foley:—On March 24, 1966, Notice of Petition and Verified Petition was served on the Board by George P. Monaghan, attorney for petitioner, seeking an Order granting the relief demanded in the petition, namely that the Board accept a "BZX" application extending the period to complete construction; Calendar Number 77-63-BZX—Vol. II; Premises 344 West 72nd Street, Block No. 1183, Lot No. 53, Borough of Manhattan.

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Tierney ruled as follows:

"... In the opinion of the court, the petition does state facts sufficient to justify relief. In all of the circumstances, the reasonableness of the new zoning regulation is in issue. Accordingly, the cross-motion to dismiss is denied. Pursuant to CPLR, section 7804 (f), respondent is directed to serve an answer to the petition within twenty days after service of a copy of this order, with notice of entry thereof. The matter is restored to the August 16, 1966, calendar of Special Term, Part I, for all purposes."

(N. Y. Law Journal, July 11, 1966, page 9).

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Gellinoff rendered the following decision:

"... Since the action sought to be reviewed was based solely on respondents' alleged lack of power to grant the extension sought and did not involve the exercise of judgment or discretion, the four months' statute is not a bar to this proceeding.

The prayer of the petition is, accordingly granted to the extent of directing respondents to accept and consider on the merits the application for an extension, without regard to the fact that the period for extensions provided for in the zoning regulations has expired."

COURT DECISION

Matter of Sonderlick vs. Foley:—On July 12, 1966, the Board granted the application based on a decision of the Borough Superintendent under Section 73-451 of the Zoning Resolution, for a term of five years, to permit in an R7-1 district, the construction and maintenance of an off-site accessory non-transient parking facility for an existing multiple dwelling, on condition that the work be done in accordance with drawings filed with this application marked "Received June 3, 1966," 2 sheets; on further condition that the parking be limited to 11 cars and limited to tenants who reside in an apartment house at 272 East 199th Street; that all laws, rules and regulations applicable be complied with; and that permit be obtained, work completed and a Certificate of Occupancy obtained within one year from the date of this resolution; Calendar Number 556-55-BZ—Vol. II; Premises 2875-2877 Briggs Avenue, west side, 182.99 feet south of East 199th Street, Block 3302, Lot 50, Borough of The Bronx.

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Chimera ruled as follows:

"... Respondents contend that petitioner has failed to present his petition to a Justice of the Supreme Court or at a Special Term of the Supreme Court within thirty days after the filing of the decision in the office of the Board of Standards and Appeals or its publication in the bulletin of the Board as is required by Section 668-e-1.0 subd. a of the Administrative Code of the City of New York.

"... In these circumstances where papers sufficiently advising the Board of the relief sought were timely served, the petition must be deemed to have been timely presented at Special Term of the Supreme Court in the fair sense of the Administrative Code. (cf. Kohenberg v. Murdock, 4 A. D. 2d 750; Satin v. Bd. of Standards and Appeals, &c., 12 A. D. 2d 526; and cases therein cited).

Accordingly the motion is denied and the respondent is given leave to answer and file a return within ninety days from the date of service of a copy of the order together with notice of entry thereof."

ACTION OF BOARD—Appliance approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

Negative: Vice Chairman Kleinert and Commissioner Fox 2

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 324-64-SA—Elliot Shapiro for Fannon Products, Division of Hupp Corporation, Warren, Michigan, filed for approval of the appliance known as Fannon-Schwank, Infra-Red Type Industrial Oven under the provisions of the Paint Spraying and Dipping Rules of the Board, Cal. No. 353-30-SR.

PROPOSED USE: For drying of flammable surface coating applied to flat surfaces.

DESCRIPTION: The Fannon-Schwank Infra-Red Oven is constructed of incombustible, insulated panels supported on structural steel framing with an opening at each end to permit the passage of a conveyor belt. Exhaust ducts are located at the top, bottom or sides of the oven and include an exhaust fan sized to maintain a solvent vapor concentration in the oven of less than 25% of the lower explosive limit. Ventilation rates are based on 10,000 cubic feet of air (70°F) per gallon of solvent evaporated.

The infra-red source is a gas fired burner made with a perforated ceramic head protected by wire screening. This head, which heats to incandescence, is made in the form of a narrow strip about 3 inches in width and is installed above the conveyor in a geometric pattern to distribute the heat over almost the entire length of the conveyor.

Ignition of the gas is by electric spark and a flame rod assembly is used for automatic gas shut off in case of flame failure or failure to ignite. Gas is supplied to the burner through a pre-mixer.

The control system also provides for purging the oven enclosure with at least four air changes prior to ignition. Failure of the gas supply, exhaust fan or electric power will close down the oven. To restart it, the control system must be reset and the oven again purged. A thermostatic temperature control is provided.

A manually operated main gas valve is located not less than 25 feet from the burner section.

An interlock is to be provided to shut off the gas supply in case of conveyor stoppage.

INSPECTION AND TEST: An installation was inspected at 321 Douglass Street, Brooklyn, by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik, in company with Mr. Elliot Shapiro.

The oven was in two attached sections with a total length of 24 feet and was 6 feet wide and 6 feet high. Conveyor speed was approximately 20 feet per minute. Burner height was adjusted at about 12 inches above the conveyor.

The material processed was masonite sheets coated on one side with a lacquer.

Several oven start-ups were witnessed as well as actual runs of lacquered masonite sheets through the oven. It operated satisfactorily as designed.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Fannon-Schwank Infra-Red Type Industrial Oven for use in New York City in accordance with this report and the Paint Spraying and Dipping Rules of the Board. Each oven shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading, "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 324-64-SA."

ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Chairman Foley, Vice Chairman Kleinert, Commissioner Fox, Commissioner Becker and Commissioner Klein 5
Negative: 0

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
73-66-SM—Armstrong Cork Company, Inc., New York, filed for approval of the material known as Armstrong Ceramaguard under the provisions of C26-88.0 and C26-604.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Incombustible tile used as a component part in a two-hour fire resistive floor and ceiling construction.

DESCRIPTION: The tiles are made of rock wool fibres and during the course of manufacture the material is baked to a high temperature after being formed into the $\frac{5}{8}$ inch thick board or tile. The surface of the tile or board is either fissured or fine textured surface pattern.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The tile was used as a component part of a floor and ceiling assembly which was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories under the provisions of C26-604.0, Administrative Building Code.

The construction was as follows: Steel joists are first installed. Metal lath is then placed on top of the joists and wire-tied to each joist. Concrete is then poured to a depth of 3 inches as measured over the joists. Cold rolled channels are attached to the lower chord of the joists to facilitate the hanging of the air conditioning system which are hung from the hangers and wires which form a trapeze support. When the ducts are installed, the top of the duct is protected by a piece of the $\frac{5}{8}$ inch board which is wire-tied in place.

The suspension system is hung from the lower chords of the joists by means of hanger wires which are tied to the joists and to the tees. The acoustical tiles are then installed by placing the tile so that they rest on the flanges of the main and cross tees.

The construction is in conformity with Dwg. 661-D-10, which is on file with and is part of the record.

The construction successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive construction. The complete report R-4177-34, R-4458 and R-4340 is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Armstrong Ceramaguard for voluntary use in New York City as an incombustible acoustical tile, $\frac{5}{8}$ inches in thickness, and for use as a component part of a two-hour fire resistive floor construction when constructed as herein described and in conformity with Dwg. 661-D-10, which is on file with and is part of the record, except that wires may be used for carrying suspension members when the drop of the suspension does not exceed 6 inches, and when such drop exceeds 6 inches, straps as required under C26-461.0, Administrative Building Code shall be used; that the air duct openings in the ceiling shall not exceed 158 sq. inches per 100 sq. ft. of ceiling area, and that the area of recessed-type electrical fixtures shall not exceed 24 sq. ft. per 100 sq. ft. of ceiling. All plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City, under Cal. 73-66-SM", and the cartons in which the tile is marketed shall be similarly marked.

545-64-SM—Feller Vacuum Form Studios, Inc., owner-manufacturer, filed for approval of the material known as Rigid Vinyl for use in New York City under the provisions of Chapter 26, Article 13, Administrative Building Code and the Flameproofing Rules of the Board.

PROPOSED USE: Commercial Display and Decorative Ornamentation.

DESCRIPTION: The Rigid Vinyl method employed to fabricate the panels is known as "vacuum forming" in which the vinyl sheets can be shaped into any form required for decorative, scenic and display. Following the vacuum forming (thermoforming), the panels may then be printed as desired.

The thickness of the panels (and of the vinyl sheets employed to fabricate them) will vary from .030 mils (1/32") to .060 mils (1/16"). The width and length vary in the forming.

The panels will be used for purposes of interior decoration in various types of commercial service enterprises, as for example, theatres, restaurants, cocktail lounges, catering halls, store, and other such areas of public assembly.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data submitted was examined by Assistant Architect Thomas W. Farricker, Jr.

The applicant has submitted a report of tests conducted by Better Fabrics Testing Bureau, Inc., which showed that there was no flashing, flaming or glow of the samples tested. The material successfully met the requirements of the Flameproofing Rules of the Board. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Rigid Vinyl as fabricated by Feller Vacuum Form Studios, Inc., for voluntary use in New York City as a display and decorative ornamentation, on condition that all requirements of the Flameproofing Rules of the Board are complied with and that each carton or wrapper in which the material is marketed

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
252-50-SA—Liquid Carbonic, Division of General Dynamics, Harrison, New Jersey, requested that the resolution adopted September 16, 1952 and amended October 19, 1954 and November 7, 1962 be reopened and amended so as to permit the use of larger refrigeration equipment in conjunction with their Liquiflow CO₂ Receivers.

PROPOSED USE: To allow piping of liquid carbon dioxide to some distance from the receiver without undue pressure rise.

DESCRIPTION: The Liquiflow CO₂ Receivers are used to store liquefied carbon dioxide at a reduced pressure by the use of freon refrigeration equipment. The original approval specified a 1/2 to 2 h.p. compressor motor for this purpose.

Originally gaseous carbon dioxide was the product used but because of new uses for liquid carbon dioxide it is now desired to pipe the liquid product to some distant point from the receiver where it would be used as liquid. To accomplish this without causing a rise in the carbon dioxide pressure due to heat gain in the pipe line it is proposed to use a single larger refrigerating system at the receiver with a compressor motor up to 15 h.p. and, if needed, an auxiliary system for cooling the liquid in the piping in which case the maximum horsepower of the compressor motors combined would not exceed 20 h.p.

The refrigeration equipment is to be installed, designed and equipped in accordance with the requirements of Article 18, Chapter 19, Administrative Code.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted September 16, 1952 and amended October 19, 1954 and November 7, 1962 under Calendar Number 252-50-SA be reopened and amended so as to permit the use of refrigerating equipment up to 15 h.p. for one system or up to 20 h.p. for two separate systems, provided that the piping arrangement and the use of liquefied carbon dioxide shall be satisfactory to the Fire Department. All other requirements of the resolution adopted September 16, 1952 and amended October 19, 1954 and November 7, 1962 under Calendar Number 252-50-SA shall be complied with.

ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
250-64-SM—Ramset Winchester—Western Division of Olin, New Haven, Connecticut, filed for approval of the material known as Ramset Dynabolt Masonry Anchors under the provisions of C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Preamsembled expansion anchors for use in stone concrete masonry.

DESCRIPTION: Dynabolts come in one preassembled unit and include tapered bolt, sleeve, washer and nut, or are of a post screw design. All assemblies are of steel—SAE and AISI numbers 1010, 1018, 1108 or 305SS with commercial bright zinc plating and are available in sizes from 1/4 to 3/4 inches in diameter and 1 3/8 to 6 inches in length. Dynabolts are made with hex nuts, round and flat screw heads, flat and round Phillips heads, stud bolts, tie wires and in stainless steel flat and round heads.

The unit is placed in a drilled hole of the same diameter as the anchor. Tightening the nut or screw head causes the wide tapered end of the bolt to expand the sleeve around it thereby gripping the wall of the hole in the masonry. Selection of the proper length of anchor depends upon the thickness of material to be fastened and the minimum depth of anchor required for maximum holding power.

INSPECTION & TEST: The ultimate tensile and shear strengths of anchor assemblies were determined by test. Test variables were diameter of anchor, strength of stone concrete, variations in drilled hole diameter due to bit tolerances, anchor depth and amount of torque and/or turns of the nut to achieve maximum holding power. Safe working loads were determined by applying a factor of safety of 4 to the ultimate values. No tests were made for anchors subject to combined tensile and shearing stresses.

New Haven Testing Laboratory, Inc., New Haven, Conn., performed the tests which are on file with and are part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Ramset Dynabolt Masonry Anchors, in sizes from 1/4 to 3/4 inches in diameter, for use in New York City as an expansion anchor in stone concrete when installed as recommended for the loads shown below:

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 1286-64-SA—Dictograph Security Systems, Division of Guardian Industries, Inc., Springfield, New Jersey, filed for approval of the appliance known as Model SD-DR Smoke Detector under the provisions of C26-191.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: A smoke detector for door release service.

DESCRIPTION: The SD-DR smoke detector is a spot type electronic device designed specifically to provide automatic smoke operated individual door release service when used in conjunction with electromagnetic door holders installed on self-closing doors.

The detector consists of two relays, two cadmium sulphide photocells, two resistors, a diode, a switch, three capacitors, and necessary wiring. A light source and reflector and a small transformer-rectifier complete the basic parts.

Operation occurs when smoke particles at a density of 2 to 4% enter the chamber of the detector and reflect light to a photocell changing the photocell resistance, thereby actuating a relay. Once activated, the detector locks in the alarm condition and will not permit the door to be held in the open position until a reset switch is manually depressed. A power failure, lamp failure or a short will de-energize the door holders.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

The Model SD-DR detector was tested and approved by Factory Mutuals, Serial No. 15886 and Underwriters' Laboratories, File S 846.

The Fire Department has submitted a report dated December 6th, 1966 recommending approval under certain conditions.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Dictograph Security Systems, Model SD-DR Smoke Detector for voluntary use in New York City as a smoke detector when used in conjunction with an approved electromagnetic door holder on self-closing, swinging doors not required to remain closed when not in use, provided that a smoke detector is located on each side of the door opening at ceiling level.

The SD-DR detector shall not be used as a substitute for fusible link devices nor shall it be electrically connected into a fire alarm system.

Each proposed installation shall be submitted to the Fire Department for their approval.

The SD-DR smoke detectors shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 1286-64-SA".

PROPOSED USE: Gas-fired water tube boiler (packaged unit) for hot water heating.

DESCRIPTION: The boiler consists of copper fin tubes, bronze headers, stainless steel burners contained in an insulated refractory fire box all enclosed in a galvanized steel and baked enamel cabinet.

The controls consist of an automatic safety pilot, electric main gas valve, gas pressure regulator. The boiler is also equipped with an HL-250 secondary electrical high limit switch.

The boiler is rated at 160 p.s.i. and is defined as a low pressure boiler under Rule 4-1.2.1 of Industrial Code Rule 4 which defines a low pressure boiler as "A boiler producing steam or vapor at a gauge pressure of 15 pounds per square inch or less or producing hot water at a gauge pressure not exceeding 160 pounds per square inch or at a temperature not exceeding 250°F."

The Raytherm units have a BTU input ranging from 100,000 to 1,570,000 BTU and the Coppertherm range from 1,600,000 to 2,400,000.

INSPECTION & TEST: The boilers have been approved by the American Gas Association. All boilers are A.S.M.E. inspected and stamped.

To compute the horsepower rating the formula $HP = \frac{BTU/hour}{33480}$ was used and it was found that all boilers below the Model 910 were less than 30HP and all boilers from 1020 up were 30HP or more.

ACTION OF BOARD—Appliance approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: Cal. No. 362-66-SA—Gilbert & Barker Mfg. Company, West Springfield, Massachusetts, filed for approval of the appliance known as Trimline Variable Blending Gasoline Dispensers, Models 954-110, 954-010, 964-110, and 964-010, under the provisions of Section C19-69.c, Administrative Code.

PROPOSED USE: To dispense gasoline of different blends to motor vehicles.

Model 954-110 Variable Blending Dispenser

DESCRIPTION: The variable blending dispenser has been designed to automatically deliver a blend of two products in as many as seven (7) predetermined proportions and will also deliver free from blending or mixing, either of the two base products. This is accomplished by using the components of two gasoline dispensers mounted in a single housing.

The variable blending dispenser consists of two motors, two pumping units, two air separator sumps, two pressure regulating valves, two meters and incremental drum type blender computer, blending valve assembly, hose, nozzle piping, conduits and electrical fittings necessary for operation.

The motors are 1/3 HP, 115/230, 60 cycle A.C. which are explosion-proof and located at the base of the dispenser.

The pump units are of the positive displacement rotary type equipped with a fixed by-pass valve and strainer. The pump units are exactly the same in design and construction as that used in current approved gasoline dispensers.

The air separators and air separator sumps are exactly the same in design construction as that used in current approved gasoline dispensers.

The pressure regulating valve which maintains liquid in that part of the system from the meter to the hose nozzle is located in the supply pipe line riser at the inlet side of the meter.

The computer is a drum type blender computer. The price of each blend can be set in the computing mechanism so that the computer will accurately record the total price for the number of gallons of products dispensed at a selected blend. The blend computer unit includes a blend control section, counter section, blend variator assembly, price increment assembly, unit price posting assembly, automatic reset and interlock mechanism. This unit is operated by a reset lever mechanism in sequence with the operating handle and motor switch mechanism.

The blending valve is constructed so that two valves can be operated by a single rotating shaft simultaneously. The valves are in separate sections within the body and the control lever moves the valves over the outlet ports with equal magnitude, increasing the flow of one product while decreasing the flow of the other product. For example, if the "HI" product port is fully closed, the "LO" product port would be full open and vice-versa.

Movement of the valve is transmitted through a valve lever which in turn is operated through the control rods by the blend computer unit. When the blend computer unit indicates that more "LO" product than required is passing through the meter, the valve control lever moves, slowing the flow of the "LO" product and increasing the flow of the "HI" product. This balance action continues during the delivery of any blend. It is accomplished by the cone gears in the blend computer rotating at the same speeds as the respective meters, and the transfer motion through range gears to a subtracting differential. This compares the speed of the two meters, and through linkage, continually adjusts the blending valve to control the flow of each product to maintain the correct blend ratio.

The valve is mechanically connected to the starting switch and the blend variator assembly which controls the flow of each product for the selected blend. This is designed to stop the flow of the selected blend if product in either of the storage tanks is exhausted or when product is not delivered to the meter.

The hose arrangement is of the external cable suspended type and extends from the hose side of the dispenser housing, 12 feet to the nozzle. The hose is a standard one inch gasoline hose which contains a 1/2" inner hose that runs through the entire length of the outer hose and is held in position at the nozzle end by a steel clip.

Each meter drive shaft is connected to its input gear of the blend variator. When the blend selector is set for a blend, the proper gear arrangement in the blend variator is set to agree with the blend selected. The output of this gear arrangement controls the movement of the connecting rod to the motor switch levers and these levers transmit this motion to the blending valve. The movement of the connecting rods adjusts the openings in the blending valve for the blend selected and the flow of product is accurately measured by each meter. The flow product through either meter is reflected by the blend variator through the control rods.

When the dispenser is set to deliver a blend, it will automatically shut down if both products are not delivered. If one of the storage tanks runs dry or if product fails to reach either meter, the blend variator will move the connecting rods to a position which will open the motor switches.

After the blending valve, the flow of "HI" product passes through the inner hose and the "LO" product through the outer hose. The product is blended at the nozzle as it flows into the consumer's vehicle.

Model 964-110 Variable Blending Dispenser

This model blending dispenser is exactly the same in all respects to the Model 954-110 with the exception that the Model 964-110 dispenser housing is extended 4" to permit the installation of internal fluorescent lights and ballast.

Model 954-010 Variable Blending Dispenser—Remote Control

This variable blending dispenser is exactly the same in all respects with the interior, exterior and the operation of the Model 954-110; however, the Model 954-010 is designed for remote control application. Therefore, the motors, pump units, air separators and air separator sumps have been removed. Air separation takes place at the remote pumping units which pump the two base products from their respective storage tanks.

The Model 954-010 is operated in exactly the same sequence as the Model 954-110 to start and stop the remote pump unit motor. The operating handle is also wired to a solenoid operated feed line valve (Unterwriters' Valve) which is operated by a switch mechanism to electrically open and close the valve in sequence with the start and stop of the remote pump unit motor. The solenoid valve is equipped with a built-in relief device which prevents excessive pressure in the meter and hose which may be caused by expansion of the product due to temperature rise in hot weather. The function of the valve also prevents product flow from the hose while any dispenser connected to the same supply line is dispensing product and the others are not in operation.

Model 964-010 Variable Blending Dispenser— Remote Control

This variable blending dispenser is exactly the same in all respects to the Model 954-010 with the exception that the Model 964-010 dispenser housing is extended 4" to permit the installation of internal fluorescent lights and ballast.

On all models, the rate of flow is 15 gallons per minute or less. The nozzle may be of the non-automatic or automatic type.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

These blending dispensers were approved by Underwriters' Laboratories, file MH 1941A, MH 1941B.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Gilbarco Trim-line Variable Blending Gasoline Dispensers, Models 954-110, 954-010, 964-110, and 964-010, for use in New York City under the provisions of C19-69.c, Administrative Code.
